Finalists receive either gold, silver or bronze awards and winners in each category are available in the links below. Look for FOLIO's December issue for in-depth profiles of select winners.

Jo Skinner

That Harvard Business Review cover is a cheap ripoff of the design for Bold laundry detergent. It's more deserving of a lawsuit than an award.
